

Community Forum:

Health and Disability Issues for Culturally Diverse Communities

- Are you a person with a disability?
- Are you a family member of a person with a disability?
- Are you a service provider or caregiver of people with disabilities?

A community forum is a chance for people to get together and share their views on an important issue. The goal of this event is to give people with disabilities from racially and ethnically diverse communities a chance to discuss their needs and priorities related to their health and disability. This event is being hosted by Access Independence in collaboration with the Lurie Institute for Disability Policy at Brandeis University.
